

Gilead and Kite Research Scholars Programs in Hematology and Oncology

Each award is funded up to $130,000 for two years, to be paid in annual installments of up to $65,000 per year.***

Gilead and Kite Research Scholars Programs support innovative research from early career investigators around the world to advance scientific knowledge in areas of unmet medical need and improve the lives of patients everywhere.

The Research Scholars Program offerings in the fields of Hematology and Oncology are designed to support innovative basic, translational, and/or clinical research projects in Hematologic Malignancies and Solid Tumors.

Applications are reviewed and selected by an independent Scientific Review Committee comprised of internationally recognized experts in basic and clinical research in the fields of Hematology and Oncology.

Junior faculty and early-career scientists from the United States and Canada are eligible to apply.

**Awards are subject to local country terms and conditions*
